- Negative point: The text is not clearly visible because of the background colours.
- Negative point: The typeface for the description of the food items is a decorative, which makes it difficult to read.
- Positive point: The serves (quantity) of each item is mentioned- single, double and knockout (along with the symbols of cups).
- Positive point: On the third page, the prices are the same for the items. The menu constricts the prices to one line, making it easier to associate each item with respective scoop cost.

- Negative point: Overcrowded pages
- Negative point: Serial number and prices side by side are confusing for the reader/customer
- Positive point: Category and hierarchy is evident.
- Positive point: The menu is consistent overall- following the same pattern.
- Negative point: Few specifications like serving, spicy are missing.

INTERVIEW WITH MAA DA DHABA

- What does Dilli to Amritsar written with the logo mean?

The concept of opening a North Indian restaurant in this area was to bring the feel of Dhaba's on Delhi Amritsar highways.

- What is the idea behind combining North Indian and Chinese cuisine?

North Indian is a different cuisine in the area and Chinese is highly in demand.

- What is the targeted audience?

Students and families, office-goers.

- Does this restaurant have any branches?

2 in yelahanka and 2 in Manyata tech park

- What about the tax system?

5% GST. All the prices are inclusive of taxes.

- Do you have daily specials?

No. There is a fixed menu.

- Which are the spicy dishes in the menu?

All the dishes are medium spicy. Changes can be made depending on what the customer prefers.

POSITIVES

- Menu is divided into two given cuisines- North Indian and Indian Chinese
- Legible Font
- Price Hierarchy
- Consistency in the menu
- More information of the restaurant in menu itself.

NEGATIVES

- The dashes used for food item to price association makes the page clustered
- No division between columns of veg/non-veg
- Veg and non- veg titles are repeated again
- Menu is divided into cuisines, the customers have to go through starters main course twice.
- The page still looks to text-heavy.

WEB/DIGITAL MENU

We wanted to categorize the menu mainly on the Cuisines- North Indian and Indian Chinese. But we realised that the hierarchy in the course of meal is lost within as there are two starters, main course of each making it tedious for the customer/user.

The giveaway menu is going to be cost effective: 2 page, black and white version of the same menu.

Feedback (we could improve on)

- The first page information: the cost should not be mentioned. Extra information about the restaurant can be placed on the last page, preferably.
- Colour scheme of black text over vermillion background should be rethought.
- More layout iterations should have been explored: rice and breads can go on a separate page or with main course but not with combo meals.
- The space is not well balanced: blank pages can be utilized.
- The aesthetics must be improvised.

Feedback (we could improve on)

- Aesthetics could be improvised. Currently it looks like an Engineer's work.
- The red cross next to the filters are disturbing. The user will not want to see so many red marks. Other symbols can be used instead. The number of items in each filter can be specified.
- Metadata functionality could be presented in a more understanding way: how does the 'you may also like section' work based on users search results or orders or on chefs recommendations. How are the 'Reviews' collected and published on the site.
- Personal restaurant information(concept of dilli to amritsar) can be added to the main page.
- Branding the site through zomato and swiggy page.
